UPDATE ON CANADA-U.S. RELATIONS

Canada is the Midwest USA's largest trading partner. Happenings in Canada as well as issues discussed between the U.S and Canada can be of great importance to enhancing our cross border business opportunities. It is important that we keep on top of these issues. The Consul General of Canada Roy Norton, will update us on current affairs in Canada and the Canada-U.S. relationship.

As the Consul General of Canada based in Chicago, Roy Norton represents Canada in Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin. Until March, 2014, Roy served as Canada's Consul General to Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan and Ohio, based in Detroit. From 2006 to 2010 he was Minister (Congressional, Public and Intergovernmental Relations) at the Canadian Embassy in Washington, D.C., with responsibility for the Canadian government's relations with the U.S. Congress, as well as for media & public relations, cultural and academic relations, the interests of Canadian provinces & territories in Washington, D.C., the activities of Canadian legislators in Washington, and outreach to U.S. states.
